Notes list app iphone

The manufacturers of the best note-making apps realize that one of the easiest ways to record notes is right in your pocket. And while iPhones and Android devices often come with their own built-in note-taking app, sometimes it's best to switch to a more fully-functional program if you need to take notes during meetings or lectures, tick the check list, brainstorm ideas, or remind yourself of upcoming events and tasks. That's why we went through the App Store and Google Play to find the best note-making apps for mobile devices. Install one of these apps on your phone and you'll never need to scramble to find the pen and paper again. The best note-taking app for Android and iOS is Evernote (Photo Credit: Evernote) Evernote was one of the first to appear in mind when taking notes and for good reason. It offers a feature-rich note-taking service that syncs across devices and platforms, ensuring that your notes, photos, and other documents are always at your fingertips, whether you're using a smartphone, tablet, laptop, or desktop computer. Tagged laptop organizations, photo, video support, to-do lists, and more make Evernote a flexible note-taking solution, although it's more complicated than minimalist solutions. The free Basic plan has a new 60MB upload limit per month, while premium and paid Business accounts increase your monthly limit and add more features. Download Evernote: Android, iOS OneNote (Image Credit: Microsoft) Microsoft's OneNote is another powerful choice among the best note-taking apps, especially if you're looking for something that integrates closely with Office. Users can type or spell notes and check lists, attach photos or PDF files, send emails or web clip content. Once uploaded, you can organize your content through the notebook system, with sections, tags, and text searches to make it easy to track your notes. Cloud sync means that your content is automatically available on all of your connected devices. OneNote has a lot of extra features, including collaboration features, Android Wear and TouchID support, although again, some will call it bloat for an app about quickly recording notes. Looking to get started with OneNote? Check out this beginner's guide to OneNote for tips and tricks on how to use the Microsoft notes app. Download OneNote: Android, iOS Google Keep (Image Credit: Google) In which many note services focus on rich feature sets, Google Keep tries to do the opposite, targeting a fairly simple cloud-based note-making app that still supports many inputs such as text notes, check lists, sounds and photos. Google Keep displays your notes and to-dos at card form reminiscent of sticky notes. Each note can be tagged, colored, or set with reminders based on time or location. Download Google Keep: Android, iOS Notion (Image Credit: Notion Labs) Notion aims to be the center of your personal and team productivity. The app allows users to create private or custom sharing spaces where they can add more blocking acts as paragraphs, bookmarks, images, conversion links, files, sni blocks, discussion sections, and more. As a result, you can bend your work space to your own will, as it's also easy to drag and drop individual blocks of content to where you need them, without interrupting the entire document. Whether you're taking notes, spreadsheets, or building Kanban boards, Notion's powerful building blocks make things quick to set up. The free version of Notion lets you save and sync up to 1,000 blocks of content, while premium subscriptions remove that content limit and add administrative tools, permissions settings, and other features, depending on the tier you choose. Concept download: Android, iOS MyScript Nebo (Image Credit: MyScript) Nebo's MyScript is a feature-rich note-making app built with handwriting and stylus devices that act as Apple Pencil and Samsung S Pen for Galaxy Note in mind. Using MyScript's Interactive Ink technology, Nebo analyzes your handwritten notes into text, and allows you to easily format your notes, adding additional features such as emphasis, underlining, bullet marks, mathematical symbols, and image captions. Users can write equations and calculations or export to LaTeX, export to Microsoft Office documents or text files, and search through your notes to find what you've scribbled. If you're adding on notes as opposed to typing them down, MyScript Nebo is an extremely versatile note tool. Originally an exclusive iPad, Nebo expanded to include a Windows 10 version for the Surface Pen, as well as an Android version for devices that use the active stylus peripherals. Download MyScript Nebo: Android, iOS, Windows 10 Dropbox Paper (Photo Credit: Dropbox) Born from Dropbox's acquisition of HackPad, Dropbox Paper is a note-taking app built with collaboration and teamwork in mind. Users can create and edit shared documents and task lists, then add comments and modifications, videos, links, images, or audio, all in the co-working space that comes with notifications and plays well with Dropbox's cloud storage organization. Dropbox Paper offers a clean collaboration note option and media-rich documents and work spaces without the clutter of a more powerful mobile text processor. It's an interesting option to consider if you need simple notes for a working group, especially for a team that already uses Dropbox. Download Dropbox Paper: Android, iOS Joplin (Image Credit: Laurent Cozic) Joplin is an ambitious app that does an OK job at copying an open source version Evernote's focus. Joplin provides users with a Markdown-formatd notes interface hosted by a laptop and uses your cloud storage services as a sync backbone. Users can import content from Evernote through .enex files, as well as Markdown content. Sorting and search filters help you organize and even have the option to encrypt your notes terminal. Joplin can synchronize between devices through Dropbox, OneDrive (One Drive Business is not supported), NextCloud or WebDAV. Download Joplin: Android, iOS Standard Note (Image Credit: Progenius) Standard notes do not have as many fancy features as other best note-taking apps as that is not the main point of providing this mobile device. Instead, Standard Notes focuses on security and encryption, with notes encrypted from start to finish with AES 256 encryption between your synced devices. Standard Notes also provides offline access, unlimited device sync, and supports encryption and fingerprint lock outside of the basic tagging system. That said, the actual note editing in Standard Notes is pretty bare-bones unless you spring to the standard extended subscription notes ($9.99/month). That plan provides Markdown support, code and spreadsheets, themes, extended backups, and cloud storage support. Download Standard Notes: Android, iOS Notebook (Image Credit: Zoho) Zoho's Notebook App is a versatile note-taking app that works great for taking notes, check lists, to-do lists, and more detailed diary entries. Your entries in the Notebook can be simple text, or they can include images, check lists, and recorded audio. A variety of gesture commands and bulk operations make it easy to organize and group notes together and organize them into notebooks. Syncing multiple devices ensures that your notes are on any device you own. Download Notebook: Android, iOS SimpleNote (Image Credit: Automatic) For something more light and text-oriented features than a lot of the best note-taking apps, try SimpleNote, a multi-platform service from Automatic. SimpleNote focuses on saving, formatting, and sharing text notes, without any excess fluff of things like additional media file support or fancy editing. What you get is a clean text entry system with some basic formats, a card-based organization, a simple collaboration, and a history feature. Clean simplicity is the down side, making SimpleNote easy to use, with multi-platform syncing being a great plus. Download SimpleNote: Android, iOS Best note taking apps for iOS Bear (Image credit: Shiny Frog) Bear is a versatile writing and notes app that works great for capturing quick notes, doodles, poetry and prose or even sniverses. Focus mode gives you instant access to your business, and the marker tuning browser supports 20 different programming languages. Supporting images and images inline in combination with Apple Pencil and hand sketches makes adding scribbles, doodles, and illustrations a simple task. Bear also includes cross note links and tag support for easy searching, completing a package that many consider one of the best note-making apps on the iPad. A subscription $1.49 per month or $14.99 annually - includes note sync, export options for a variety of file types, and additional editing tools. Download Bears: iOS Notes (Photo Credit: Apple) Apple's own notes aim more for an average ground than some of the other best note apps, with a clean and simple formatted text, scriptive, drawings (with Apple Pencil support on iPad) images, web sn clips, and attachments can be obtained. Users can organize notes and attachments in the directory system and search for text One of the most compelling reasons to use Notes — other than the fact that notes are already on your iPhone or iPad — are all your notes synced on your iCloud devices. You can also protect your notes with a password (or unlock them with TouchID). Download Notes: iOS Noteshelf (Image Credit: Fluid Touch) Noteshelf is another feature-rich note app that isn't just about mining text. The $9.99 app supports virtual keyboards, handwriting through a range of active stylus brands and includes an expressi ink tool and a range of tools for things like highlighting, diagrams, photos and captions and recorded sounds. Users can organize their notes into virtual notebooks, record their notes in a variety of paper formats, bookmark and print their notes, or excel at Evernote, social media, and various cloud storage services. That said, Noteshelf has a high price, so if you don't need all the advanced features, you might want to check out the other options listed here. Download Noteshelf: iOS Penultimate (Photo Credit: Evernote) Of course, if you really like the physical feel of recording handwritten notes, consider Evernote's Penultimate. A note-and-scribble app with handwriting in mind, Penultimate has an expressly handwritten tool, a smart Drift feature that automatically moves pages to fit your text. In addition, Penultimate handles your notes, allowing you to search through them to find paragraphs of text and the app also integrates nicely with Evernote. Download Penultimate: iOS Notability (Image Credit: Ginger Labs) Notability is a feature-rich note-taking app that makes the most of the interface features introduced since iOS 9. Your $9.99 app has been covered on all the notes taking the basics like text, formatting, images and sketches, while also including PDFs and photo captions and recordings can all be organized into folders. Multitascies support on the new iPad makes it a great research companion, and 3D Touch can speed up note creation, opening, and previewing. About the only periodical criticism is that Notability has no built-in handwriting search. Notable Downloads: The best note-taking apps for Android Squid (Image Credit: Steadfast Innovation) Formerly known as Papyrus, Squid joins the ranks of the best note-taking apps by focusing on handwritten notes, drawings, and diagrams. Squid's vector-based build system means you can zoom in and out of your notes and drawings without losing quality, with support for the use of passive stylus or Active. Users can import images into their notes and export them as PDF, PNG, or JPG files, and notes can be sorted into notebooks so you can track them. Premium registration nice extras like more paper styles, pdf input and annotation, and bulk export of notes to cloud services. Download Squid: Android Android
